Microsoft Access

Microsoft Access is a reliable database system used for designing, storing, and analyzing structured data. Access is suitable for developing small-scale databases and large, enterprise-level business systems – to facilitate client management, inventory control, order tracking, or financial analysis. Linking with other Microsoft services, for example, Excel, SharePoint, and Power BI, upgrades data handling and visualization functionalities. Because of the combination of high performance and low cost, Microsoft Access remains the perfect choice for users and organizations in need of reliable tools.

Microsoft Teams

Microsoft Teams functions as a multi-use platform for messaging, collaboration, and online meetings, developed as a universal solution for teams of any size. She has become a significant element within the Microsoft 365 ecosystem, consolidating messaging, voice/video calls, meetings, file sharing, and integrations with other platforms in one workspace. Teams is meant to give users a centralized digital hub to streamline their work, where you can socialize, plan tasks, run meetings, and work on documents jointly—without exiting the app.

Microsoft Visio

Microsoft Visio is an application focused on building diagrams, schematics, and visual models, used for illustrating complex data in a transparent and well-structured format. It is fundamental for presenting processes, systems, and organizational architectures, technical schematics or architecture of IT systems in visual form. The software features a rich assortment of ready-made elements and templates, that can be effortlessly dropped onto the workspace and linked, crafting coherent and easy-to-navigate schematics.

Skype for Business

Skype for Business serves as a professional platform for messaging and virtual cooperation, that integrates instant messaging, voice and video calls, conferencing, and file exchange as part of one safe solution. A professional-oriented extension of the original Skype platform, this system helped companies improve their internal and external communication processes based on the organization's security, management, and integration requirements for other IT systems.
